LIVERPOOL PUBLIC LIBRARIES
COMMERCIAL REFERENCE LIBRARY

Rules and Regulations

1. This Library is open to the Public gratuitously every day—Sundays, Christmas Day, Good Friday and Bank Holidays excepted—from the hour of NINE in the morning to SIX in the evening for five days of the week, and on Saturday from NINE A.M. to ONE-THIRTY P.M.

2. No person shall be admitted who is intoxicated or in an uncleanly condition ; nor shall any smoking or audible conversation be permitted ; nor shall any person be allowed to partake of refreshments therein ; spitting, standing before the fire, and rambling about the room are strictly prohibited ; and any person who shall offend against these regulations, or shall be guilty of any other misconduct, shall not be allowed to remain in the Library.

3. No Book, Periodical, or Newspaper shall be taken out of the Library. The Library is intended for Reference only, and the Books, etc., shall not be lent out.

4. Any person who shall unlawfully or maliciously destroy or damage any Book, Periodical, or Newspaper in this Library will be prosecuted.

5. The Librarian (or person acting in that capacity) shall have power to exclude from the Library, either temporarily or permanently, any person who, in his judgment, is likely to make or has made any improper use of the Books therein. Any person aggrieved by his decision shall have a right of appeal to the Library, Museum and Arts Committee, whose decision shall be final.

EDWARD R. PICKMERE,

Town Clerk.

INTRODUCTION

THE Liverpool Commercial Reference Library was opened on the first of August, 1917. The opening ceremony was performed by the Right Honourable Lord Parmoor, who delivered an eloquent address to a representative gathering of Liverpool business men in the Town Hall. In the course of his address Lord Parmoor aptly and concisely described in the following words the objects of the Commercial Reference Library :

“ I look upon this (Commercial) Library as doing the liaison work between research on the one side and practical business work on the other . . . This library is not a School of Commerce ; it is not a place for you to learn commerce, but it is a place where people who are skilled in commerce may go to obtain information of a wide kind which they may want in connection with their business.”

The pages of this handbook—particularly the “Alphabetical Index to Commercial Subjects” (pp. 1-10)—shew the efforts of the Libraries Committee to “supply information of a wide kind” which men may want in connection with their business.

The Library is intended for ready reference to Commercial Subjects, and the object of the whole scheme of arrangement is to enable quick reference to be made to the contents. The Library is situated in the centre of the business portion of the City. The books (which include Government Publications, Colonial and other official Reports) are placed on open shelves to which the readers have direct access. They are strictly classified according to subjects, and the numbers in this handlist facilitate reference to them. There is a special rack for Periodicals, and attached to it is a carefully compiled index to the principal contents of the current periodicals. By means of that index, business men will often find articles on the subjects which interest them, in other periodicals than those they usually read. Back numbers of periodicals are systematically stored, and reference to them can be quickly made. The Committee have recognised that in a port like Liverpool there will be a demand for Maps, and in that section of the Library the latest atlases and maps will be found. By means of a device specially designed for this library, the maps can be quickly placed in convenient positions for consultation. There is a large collection of British and Foreign Directories, and the use of these is both extended and facilitated by a card index.

The absence of dates from this handbook is intended to imply that the latest issues of all the publications are available.

The staff will be found both able and willing to render effective assistance to all users of this Library, and their daily experience adds to their efficiency. To the Librarian-in-charge (Mr. G. Halsall) and the Assistant (Miss E. B. Saxton) special acknowledgments are due for their work in the compilation of this handbook.

It is a pleasure to acknowledge the valuable support which the Committee have received in connection with this Library from the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, the Liverpool Underwriters' Association, and other Trade Associations. The generous gifts of the Chamber of Commerce to all sections have materially added to the scope and usefulness of the Library. The Committee are also indebted to the Liverpool Underwriters' Association for providing the Library with a set of the latest and best editions of standard works on Marine Insurance.
